

My claim

I Michael Washington claim that I am the first one to invent a backpack memorabilia card collector's bag. My backpack is made from a cloth like material, which has two straps on the back of the bag and a handle on the top. This makes it easy to carry on your back or ether by hand. It also has a pocket on the front of the bag that will be used to carry an autograph book and two pens. On the inside of the bag you will find a binder that opens and closes. The binder will be found on the inside of the bag. The binder is about five and a half inches in size. The binder is used to hold the plastic pocket holders for the cards. There also will be dividers to separate the different types of memorabilia cards. The name of my backpack is called " the cards collectors back pack". It will be able to hold over 2000 memorabilia cards.

Sincerely Yours
Michael Washington
